Course Description:
Ohio has a long history in pediatric occupational therapy. We are fortunate to have some of the finest children’s hospitals and pediatric occupational therapy research laboratories in the country. To celebrate this rich legacy and explore our future, this year’s Hite Symposium will feature some of the leading pediatric occupational therapists in the state describing the state of their clinical interests and helping us navigate the paths pediatric occupational therapy will take.

Course Objectives
- Relate how evidence-based practice in Occupational Therapy affects evaluation and treatment decisions.
- Demonstrate how Occupational Therapy can affect school culture and climate so that all children feel welcome in their school and can make every moment count.
- Review Occupational Therapy’s role in low vision – particularly in Cortical Visual Impairments.
- Define the role of Occupational Therapy in supporting children who are experiencing pain.
- Present the evidence for using Constraint-Induced Movement Therapy for children with hemiparesis.

Established in 2004, The Symposium is an endowment from the Hite Family that sponsors lectures by distinguished occupational therapy scholars for students, alumni, faculty, and practitioners.
