The faculty members honored with the Courage to Teach designation are faculty committed to the humanistic teaching of the medical school curriculum. They love to teach and they enjoy working with emerging physicians.

Can you identify the Courage to Teach faculty member from the description on the following slides?
• Turn down a teaching assignment? Not likely from a man that speaks ‘pharm’ as a second language.

• Drawn to the challenge of teaching students a new topic or a new way of looking at things and finds going into the lecture hall invigorating.

• “They pay me to stand up and tell people what I think, how good is that?”

• Knows he is doing the job he is supposed to be doing and ‘if you find a job you love, you don’t work a day in your life.’

Keep reading to find out who has the “Courage to Teach”...
Loves his family and even brings one of them to work each day.

Loves the art world and surrounds himself with paintings, pottery, weaving and art glass.

Grows everyday by learning something new, interacting with students and approaching negative things with a positive attitude.

Hint: Professor of the Year 2006.

Keep reading to find out who has the “Courage to Teach” ...