The faculty members honored with the Courage to Teach designation are faculty committed to the humanistic teaching of the medical school curriculum. They love to teach and they enjoy working with emerging physicians.

Can you identify the Courage to Teach faculty member from the description on the following slides?
His father was the most influential person in his life due to his sense of humor and selfless way of living. His Dad reminds him of Dick Van Dyke.

With an actor for a brother, the most wonderful woman in the world as his wife and a mother with intelligence and strength, he grew up surrounded by a great family.

He found many mentors in the OSU College of Medicine as he began to discover his talent for patient care, teaching, research and curriculum design.

His undergraduate work was focused on literature and he values creativity in his life and admires it in the lives of others.

Keep reading to find out who has the “Courage to Teach” ...
★ He is known for his sense of humor especially when confronted with impossible deadlines.

★ His teaching responsibilities are in the behavioral and social sciences. He enjoys creating curriculum that pulls the student into thoughtful discussion and reflection.

★ His research centers on patient communication and encouraging patient ownership of their health care.

★ He is a professor in the Department of Family Medicine and Director of the Clinical Applications and Problem Solving Course in the OSU College of Medicine.

Keep reading to find out who has the “Courage to Teach” ...
Douglas M. Post, PhD
Department of Family Medicine