The faculty members honored with the Courage to Teach designation are faculty committed to the humanistic teaching of the medical school curriculum. They love to teach and they enjoy working with emerging physicians.

Can you identify the Courage to Teach faculty member from the description on the following slides?
She is a gourmet cook that enjoys being with family and friends for special meals.

You will find her working with future MDs and PhDs with the enthusiasm of a seasoned teacher.

Her ready smile and her warm reception to students’ questions makes her a sought after teacher and mentor.

Keep reading to find out who has the “Courage to Teach”...
She loves to teach about complex ideas and watch the eyes of her students for the moment of understanding.

Her publications and presentations in the areas of neuroimmunology, immunology and pharmacology are well recognized in the academic community.

Her life has included experience at the NIH, election to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and OSU COM recognition through the Excellence in Teaching Award.

Keep reading to find out who has the "Courage to Teach"...
Virginia Sanders, PhD
Molecular Virology, Immunology, and Medical Genetics